The C., St L and N. O. Railroad.

K-ferring to the recent unprecedented floods of the Ohio and Mississippi rivers and their tributaries, which has been attended with such disastrous consequences to the va-rious railroads crossing the river at this place, we note with surprise the energy displayed by our neighbor on the east bank of the river. The flood left the Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans railroad with their track heavily damaged as far south as Wickliffe, with 35 miles of embankment badly vashed out, all of which had to be cribbed and piled in a heavy current of water to reestablish their communication. This has been done promptly, and the road is again running to East Cairo. In the meantime, the road has carried all its freight and pas-senger traffic over their temporary river inincs at Wickliffs and Filmore, Although eir misfortunes have been great, the fortune of good management has certainly atbeen maintained throughout the flood, forwarding freight and passenger traffic promptly on time without interruption, and he road is now ready to resume business at

COTTON. At the close of our review of the cotten market for the week ending Friday, March 17th, spot middling in New York was quoted 12 3-16c, at which price the market pened on the first day of the past week, and rom which no change was made during the week. The following table indicates the prices at the close of the week as compared with those ruling the same day of the previous week:

New York futures began the week with a light rise for January and March, but small declines for active months, and 4 to 5 points off for October to December, inclusive. recovering nearly all lost the day before, but the following two days were again disastrous, in which the price list was reduced in amounts ranging from 8 to 10 points. On Friday, the last day, the deal showed a bare check in the decline, with 2 to 4 points gained for active months. The Financial thronics, of Saturday, tells of the influences governing in that market during the week: The speculation in cotton for future delivery has been much less active during the past week. An early decline was followed by a variable and unsettled market. Some depression toward the close of Saturday's busiss was supplemented on Monday by a sharp cline, attributed to the strike among the nurse at Lawrence, Mass., the subsidence the floods in the Mississippi valley, and some increase in the receipts at the ports, all of which induced many of the late boyers for the advance to become eager sellers. On esday there was some recovery, on reports Wednesday the market was again depressed by reports of large receipts at Bombay and dull foreign advices. This weakness con-
